

GOOEY DUCKS

(GEODUCKS*)

Chorus:

Dig a duck, dig a duck, Dig a gooey duck
Gotta dig a gooey duck, Gotta dig a duck a day
'Cause I get a buck a duck if I dig a gooey duck.
So I gotta dig a duck, Gotta dig a duck a day

You can hear the digger say as he's headed for the bay
"I gotta dig a duck, gotta dig a duck a day
Cause I get a buck a duck I f I dig a gooey duck
So I gotta dig a duck, Gotta dig a duck a day!"

Chorus

They walk across the sand, 'bout a half a mile from land
To dig a gooey duck, and dig him up by hand
But it isn't much trouble and you don't use a shovel
You find a gooey duck by looking for the bubble!

Chorus

It take a lot of luck and a certain kind of pluck
To dig around the muck to get a gooey duck
Cause he doesn't have a front and he doesn't have a back
And he doesn't know Donald and he doesn't go, "Quack!"

Chorus

* A geoduck (pronounced "gooey-duck" or "gwe-duck") is a giant clam, the world's largest burrowing bivalve, often attaining a weight of ten pounds. The "Gooley Duck" song was written by harpmaker-storyteller Ron Konzak of Washington State along with Judy and Jerry Elfendahl. Jerry is a diver who is part of a new industry that harvests the geoduck commercially in the Pacific Northwest. The song has been released as single and is available through Acme Music (6490 Ada's Will lane NE, Bainbridge Island, WA 98110).
